Our children are exposed to many lessons daily. As for formative assessments, the teachers will have checkpoints to make sure the kids are learning during the lesson. Exit tickets are provided after the lesson, and the question will be related to the lesson, and they indicate whether or not the kids are where they need to be, which are spiraled questions and reused over time. Assessments that are achievement based, all in real time. To help us inform the day to day. Progress report is a few weeks away. It is all the info that the teachers collect on a daily basis relative to what the standards are at this time. Ratings are coming from the formative assessments.
